Market Commentary

January saw mixed returns across global equity markets. In the US, the S&P 500 had a strong month as it rose 5.7%. This was during a month where Federal Reserve chair Janet Yellen held her final meeting before she hands over to successor Jerome Powell in early February. In contrast, the broad index for UK stocks - the FTSE All Share - fell 1.9% as pound sterling strengthened against all major trading partners, rising 5.0% relative to the US dollar and 1.5% relative to the euro. Elsewhere in Europe, the Euro STOXX 50 rose 3.1%. In fixed income, following a year that saw a significant flattening of the US yield curve, 2018 began with a slight steepening and increase in level as rates across the maturity spectrum rose. Focusing on 10-year rates, US Treasuries finished the month at 2.7%, while UK Gilts and German Bunds rose to 1.5% and 0.7% respectively.
